The doctor sometimes passes a harder entence than the judge. But the sen-ence of the doctor is more often set or overruled than is that of the judge. dence of such a request, and who can diagnose the feelings of the wife? Not Mrs. Moss, certainly, for she said when asked about it:

"I did not know what to think. I was so sorry for the gir!, awfully sorry. I loved George, I love him yet. He was so awful upset. I—well, I just cried. Did I feel slighted or hurt at his neglect, at his love for another? I don't know. I just felt scrry for the gir!. It wasn't right, I know. But I did not think of that. I just cried. "The tears indicated consent to Moss, and he forthwith hurried the gir! to the house. "She just took me in her arms like a mother," says Mary Malady.

"The women took to each other at once," says Moss.

"She was so thin and pitiful looking," said Mrs. Moss. "that if I had not known what to do before I just knew then. I could not see her suffer, and I just opened my arms and took her to me."

Then followed the most remarkable part of the drama. In the room of the wife whom she had wronged Mary Malady's child was born, and had it not been for Mrs. Moss's careful nursing and tender care the mother would never have survived the long illness which ensued.

Wife Like Mother to Girl.

Moss lived in the house all this time, and was as assiduous in his attentions to the girl as ever. Mrs. Moss made no objection. Asked why she allowed it, she answered calmity:

"Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so much "Mary loves him, and I love her so

Asked why she allowed it, she answered caimly:

"Mary loves him, and I love her so much that I would not do anything to hurt her or cause her pain. She wanted him and I let her have him. Yes," she declared, placidly, but with a look of dumb suffering in her eyes, "I loved him, too; I love him yet."

She watches over the girl like a jealous mother, eager to gratify her every wish, never hampler than when the girl evinces some love for her, eager for her drass to be neate for her to be pretty and happy, devoting her whole time almost to caring for the girl.

How long the mixed household might have lived on there is no telling. Kingston is small and the neighbors are inquisitive. The advent of the girl in the house of the Mosses was spread from tonsue to tongue with advent of the girl in the house of the Mosses was spread from tonsue to tongue with speed.

Finally the whole truth was known, and known so well that all the facts were pat. Then the case was laid before the United Charities Association of Wilkesbarre, and the facts became public property.

The officers took Mary Malady and her haby away from the house, and arrested Moss. The hearing in the Alderman's office was pitiful. The truth was thrashed bare, but the man sat stolldly through it all.

The women were hysterical, but the wife preserved some little calmness, and, despite her own condition, managed to soothe and comfort the girl. The children stared on with deep interest and little understanding of what is was all about.

Moss was sent to jail. There again the wife revealed her new love. She had come into a little property. St.000 or 4,000, and she offered to go his bail.

"Mary will feel so badly over it," she said. "I want him to be free."

But the Alderman refused to allow the man even that respite from his punishment and would not accept the bail. He was locked up. Mary was sent back to the care of the United Charities and Mrs. Moss went home, despondent and lonely, a great craving in her heart for the girl. Not a day has since passed that she has not been to see the girl, and their meetings are affecting.

The girl is no less devoted, and frequent-see the giri, and their meetings are anecting.

The girl is no less devoted, and frequently weeps for "dear Mrs. Moss" to come. She also weeps for her "dear George," languishing in jail.

The girl had told her story to the Alderman, and to others. She is not ashamed of it, nor is she boastfully proud. To her it is just a recital of facts; their moral weight has nothing to do with the matter as far as she is concerned. She loves Moss, and he loves her. She asks why any one interferes.

says. "If I get a divorce will they let him out? I'm going to get a divorce anyway. I am not going to stand in the way of their hardiness. They love each other, and they ought to get married and live together.

"I can take care of the children. George loves her more than he loves me, so I don't mind much. She is so unhappy without him! Why. I'd give anything to see her happy and comfortably settled. It seems strange to some people, but it isn't to me. Happiness is the chief thing in this world. I'd rather be happy than rich, and when I can get a chance to make two people happy, why shouldn't I? If I kept George to myself, he and the girl would he unhappy, and I shouldn't be very happy, but by getting a divorce I can make them both happy, and I'll be happy on account of it, for I love her dearly—and I love George, too."

ite. It is believed that the people, when the matter comes up, will also agree to take the particular piece of property for a public breathing place.

The tract consists of 150 acres, and is situ-The tract consists of 150 acres, and is situated just north of the city limits. It can be reached by two car lines, and is high and dry at all seasons. The site was voted upon some time ago, and as there was some quibble about the right of the agents to make a deed to the place, the people downed the proposition by a large majority. Now, however, the owners have agreed to let It go for a much lower sum, and there is however, the owners have agreed to let It go for a much lower sum, and there is much favorable comment on the matter. The people of East St. Louis have desired a park for years, but for some reason they have never secured one. All the land in the central part of town is owned by private parties, and of course they will not sell for any sum in reason.

The property at the bluffs is so far away that the people do not wish to consider it in the matter of securing a park site. The members of the Egyptan Club will now submit a proposition to the Council, and the matter will come up in the regular way for a vote by the people.

FOR A DRAINAGE SYSTEM.

Stephens to Submit Plans.

The members of the City Council have requested Mayor M. M. Stephens to submit his proposition for draining the city at the next meeting of the Council. Mr. Stephens some time ago appeared before the Legislature, and had a bill passed permitting the people of a municipal district to form drainings districts and to issue bonds for the building of dykes and sewers.

Mr. Stephens believes that a sewer large enough to drain East St. Louis, running parallel with the Mississippi River, would perform the work at all times of the year, no matter how high the water stood in the river. He claims that if it empties fifto the river about three miles below the town the water could not back up so as to run the water ould not back up so as to run the waters of the river back into the city. His opinion is shared by the leading engineers of the city. The water in the river has a fall of about three feet in that distance and it is contended that the rise would have to be more than double that number of feet in order to affect the rise in the sewer at the head.

Severe pains in the back, loins, and thighs and a generally weak feeling across the small of the back are certain indications of a diseased prostate gland. Doctor Milen's treatment for prostatitis ulceration or enlargement of the prostate and all other diseases of this member, is a most thorough and scientific one When a man has lost his manly pow-er, that one great and pre-eminent at-tribute of his sex, when he realizes the everlasting disgrace that attaches to an impotent man, he is overpowered with a feeling of shame and despondency. It him to once more become a man among men, and to cause him to feel that he is normal, healthy condition, and at the same time causes all reflex nervous conditions and disturbances of the other organs of the sexual system to disappear, completely and permanently.

BLOOD POISON.

Blood Poison is, in its mildest form, a wretched and disgraceful disease, one which is always to be dreaded. If neg-lected or improperly treated and the virus is allowed to enter the system and the disease thus to become, as it is termed, constitutional, it becomes a most loathsome and filthy disease, undermining the constitution, destroying the general health and sapping the very foundation of life, rendering the sufferer a mere wreck in both body and mind, disgusting to himself and shunned by all around him. It is not sufficient in order to erudicate the disease from the order to eradicate the disease from the system that the primary ulcer at the time of infection should merely be healed. A thorough constitutional treatment is necessary from the beginning, otherwise the disease develops later on in what are termed the secondary and in what are termed the secondary and tertiary stages. These stages are manifest by a variety of symptoma, such as aches in various parts of the body, particularly in the knees and lower limbs. The hair and eyebrows fall out, pimples appear in the scalp, copper-colored spots on various parts of the body and mucous patches in the mouth.

Doctor Milen's treatment for blood poison in all its stages is absolutely the most perfect, thorough, and effective ever discovered. He stakes his professional reputation upon its unfalling success and he guarantees a positive and speedy cure in every case. By his system of treatment every vestige of the poison is thoroughly eradicated from the system, never to return.

STRICTURE.

The great prevalence of Urethral Stricture, its disastrous and often fatal results, makes it a disease demanding most skillful treatment. No ailment of mankind is more dangerous to the general health than Urethral Stricture, and none has been ambiected to more diseral health than Urethral Stricture, and none has been subjected to more flagrant maltreatment. It is surprising that in this enlightened age doctors continue the barbarous, painful and useless method of cutting to remove stricture. Stricture is a granular and not a muscular formation, and as such must be dissolved and digested by chemical action. Cutting, dilating and other barbarous methods are only practiced by the ignorant and unskilled. Dector Milen's treatment for stricture is a painless one.

THEODORE MILEN, M. D. It is not known or used by any other physician in this country, being purely his own discovery. The treatment is easily administered and it quickly and permanently dissolves the stricture, removing it root and branch, and in so doing all reflex and associate troubles

VARICOCELE.

Varicocele is in substance an accumulation of sluggish blood in the velus of a weakened and diseased scrotum. It is both a cause and effect of seminal weakness. Doctor Milen cures varicocele without an operation by his own original weakeness.

DISEASE ENDANGERS LIFE IF NEGLECTED.

All diseases are dangerous—some more so than others, particularly if they are neglected. It is criminal negligence not to consult a doctor that can and will cure you if you are afflicted with disease of any kind. Many simple aliments if not promptly attended to frequently take on complicated conditions and a fatal termination is inevitable if relief is not obtained. Men, if you are sick or alling and want to regain health and strength, go to the doctor who possesses the skill and ability to cure you; the doctor who will thoroughly sympathise with you in your affliction; the doctor who will treat you with the greatest kindness and consideration. You will find all these qualifications in the person of Doctor Milen.

A CURE GUARANTEED IN ALL CASES.

Doctor Milen is so certa ability to cure any sexual disease that he gives a legally binding contract to cure every case that he undertakes, or, in case of failure, to refund the fee paid. Surely no fairer proposition could be made.

his wire, and the Judge sent him to the Penitentiary for life.

The lodge claims that, although his wife held the certificate, he cannot gain by her death, as he killed her. His attorneys answer that he is not gaining, but that his helrs, which are her children, will gain, in case the money is recovered. The case will be watched with interest by the members of the different fraternal organizations of the county. It will come up at the September term.
